Building a professional network is a great way to come across new opportunities, learn about industry knowledge, and get guidance from seasoned professionals in your field. That is why learning how to confidently present, or "pitch", yourself is so important when it comes to building relationships throughout your career. In this month's webinar workshop, we will be joined by career coach Win Sheffield to delve deeper into ways to make lasting impressions on interviewers, introduce yourself to friends and colleagues alike, and effectively pitch yourself to professionals. Win Sheffield is a seasoned professional with experience in finance, strategic planning and management consulting from working with Citibank, J.P. Morgan, and PricewaterhouseCoopers.
